One-fifth of consumers would choose brands with a clear sustainability vision over others. Animal welfare is the primary reason for these dietary choices. The widespread “mindfulness” trend—being present in the moment—expanded to include mindful eating. Supermarkets often reject misshapen or blemished produce. This game and other solitaire variations are easily played by all ages. How manufacturers can bring convenience to shoppers Offer ambient and fresh convenience foods that appeal to healthy eaters. Asda found that 75% of customers would buy oddly shaped foods if they cost less, so some stores market “ugly veg” at a discount. Colourful, interesting new foods and drinks posted online catch on quickly. Many British households rarely cook as delivery services such as Deliveroo and Just Eat become more popular. They perceive the gluten-free diet to be healthier. How manufacturers can support meatless and cruelty-free diets Introduce meat-free and dairy-free products. Many businesses have banned disposable straws, plastic water bottles, and single-use coffee cups. Trends like sparkly mermaid toast and unicorn Frappuccinos generate buzz overnight. A timer keeps track of the time elapsed as you compete with yourself.FreecellIn this solitaire variation, the player uses four cells to move cards around the virtual board. Invest in technology that makes it easy to trace ingredients and assure quality throughout your supply chain. Research how you can reduce or offset your greenhouse gas emissions. These habits boost demand for high-quality convenient meals. Look for suppliers with a variety of international spices and ingredients. Monitor social sites and your supply chain to adjust before popular ingredients get scarce. Replace single-use plastics with compostable or eco-friendly packing materials. How manufacturers can support consumers' health and wellbeing goals Follow diet trends to see which ingredients are falling out of favour. British people are more concerned about climate change than ever before. Choose meat and dairy suppliers that meet high animal welfare standards. Others produce recipe boxes filled with all the necessary ingredients to cook at home. Some programs store the progress and scores for you to keep up with your plays. Free-from food sales in the UK grew by £230 million in 2017. Some businesses now sell gourmet freezer meals and vegan ready-meals. Interest in healthy eating is on the rise. Put details of your product’s traceability on the packaging or website. Consumers want to know their meat and dairy comes from humane farms. 15% of all UK households now avoid gluten—even if they don’t suffer from coeliac disease. Millions of people photograph their meals and drinks to share their favourite finds. This way, you can take your games with you when you’re away from your computer. People throw out food because it’s not eaten in time, or because they misunderstand the expiration dates and toss things that are still safe. Footage showing animals struggling against pollutants affected viewers. Incorporate global cuisine into your product recipes. Mindful shoppers seek nutritious, safe, ethically sourced foods. Social media is another major contributor to trendy international cuisine. Learn more about how Epicor Tropos helps UK process manufacturers manage the everyday business and boost efficiency across the enterprise. New diets arise all the time—keto, paleo, 5:2, Dukan, Atkins, and others are popular among consumers. Adults work longer hours and often face longer commutes than in years past. Each of these diets increases the demand for food substitutions. Now, they’re becoming mainstream. There are numerous variations of solitaire that are usually played by one individual. UK consumers look to other countries and cultures for inspiration. In addition, it helps reduce carbon emissions linked to climate change. The popular solitaire card game has been around for years, and can be downloaded and played on personal computers. This “shop local” trend ensures that people eat the freshest ingredients. This digital version of the card game handles the shuffling and dealing of the cards for you. The player aims to get rid of the cards in the quickest way with the fewest moves. Even though the BBC show “Blue Planet II” first aired back in October 2017, it continues to make waves today. The game uses two cards coupled together and adding up to 13 that are removed from the deck (like a six and a seven or an eight and a five). Promote how your brand ensures safety and ethically sources ingredients on product labels and your website. Consumers often stop to shop for their evening meal after work. You basically play against yourself, with the computer as the dealer. Simplify and clarify food freshness labels. It’s not only famous foodies influencing the public. Because of the programme, 88% of viewers altered their behaviour. Pyramid is a fun and entertaining card game, and a great way to pass the time.TripeaksIn the game of Tripeaks, cards are selected in a sequence going up or down to accumulate points. It’s part of the Microsoft software collection, and is one of the free solitaire games for PCs. The game is played using eight columns of cards lined in a row on the computer screen. Flexitarians choose certain days or meals to avoid eating meat. Another type of food waste is “wonky” fruits and vegetables. Many people today feel time-poor. UK vegans—people avoiding all animal products—numbered 3.5million in April 2018 up from 150,000 in 2006 according to a recent article in The Independent. Staples such as fish and chips and the Sunday roast now rank below curry as the favourite British meal. How manufacturers can incorporate free-from foods Promote products you already make that are free from common allergens or gluten. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED.NET Blogs Top 10 Food and Beverage Industry Trends for 2020 Consumer behavior impacts the market for UK food and beverage manufacturers. Invest in technology that helps you measure and minimise waste throughout your processes. Consider using substitutions to create healthier versions of popular recipes.. Be careful to avoid cross-contamination with allergens in free-from products. They study food labels and buy brands that demonstrate commitment to quality. The UK wastes more than 10 million tonnes of food each year. Maturing adults value foods rich in omega-3 fatty acids, B vitamins, and antioxidants such as oily fish and leafy greens to boost brainpower. The number of people who say they regularly buy free-from foods grew from 19% to 43% between 2015–2017. Sensitivities such as lactose intolerance and coeliac disease boost sales for dairy-free milk. Learn more about this year’s trends—and what they mean for UK manufacturers—in our Food and Beverage Industry Trends white paper. How manufacturers can embrace social trends Use social media to promote Instagram-worthy photographs of your products. Zero-waste initiatives gained in popularity. Explore recipe kits for easy meals. How manufacturers can feed international palates Follow travel blogs, social media pages, and magazines to discover trending global foods. Eventually all the cards are cleared and the game ends. The programs that are downloaded on your computer are usually available to play on tablets and smartphones, too. Spending on these recipe kits was up by 65% in the first half of 2016 compared to the same period in 2015. Look for opportunities to add gluten-free, nut-free, or dairy-free recipes into your product lineup. How manufacturers can cut food waste Buy suppliers’ unwanted produce for use in the foods you manufacture. As people share travel and dining photos with friends and family, they increase interest in new dishes and ingredients. A new category called “flexitarians” has popped up as well. How manufacturers can support mindful eaters Choose suppliers who value transparency and traceability. Manufacturers have to navigate new recipes, packaging, labels, and demand for new products. Develop new products that only need one or two steps for a complete and nutritious meal. How manufacturers can make a difference Adopt sustainability standards for your packaging and transportation. For example, many choose “courgetti” in place of pasta, cauliflower for rice, and lettuce for wraps. The most common “free-from” foods are dairy-free and gluten-free diets. The average time people spend preparing dinner at home shrank from an hour in 1980 to 24 minutes today. On some PCs this game is also called Klondike.SpiderSpider is a variation of the traditional solitaire. Social media sites constantly list “in-vogue” ingredients from near-obscurity. How manufacturers can embrace the buy local trend Partner with area farmers to source produce. One common need across the food and drink industry is technology. Many of the following games are free to play and easy to use.The Classic GameThe classic game of solitaire that used to be played with a deck of cards can now be downloaded for Windows 10 on your computer and accessed by email. Just a few years ago, few consumers had heard of aquafaba, chia seeds, or sea vegetables. While the games are free, most have ads that pop up during play.PyramidPyramid is another free option. Foods from Korea, Hawaii, Portugal, Japan, Mexico, Cuba, the Philippines, and the Middle East are gaining popularity. Monitor demand for ingredient substitutions that might affect your supply chain. Choose local distributors focused on sustainability. Play continues with the remaining cards, and the goal of reaching 13 each time in order to continue. Promote efforts to support the community and reduce your carbon footprint. People also seek out foods that improve brain health. In 2018, 65% of meat shoppers said traceability is important to them. 20% of that number—about £1.4 billion worth—comes from food manufacturing. To keep up with these trends, it's essential to have software that helps assure quality, traceability, and regulatory compliance.
